THOUGHT TO BE DEAD

Senator Turpie's Brother Returns After Forty-One Years.

An Old Bachelor Who Has Made His Fortune in the West-Frank Nelson, of Greencastle, Fails.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. DELPHI, Ind., Sept. 28.—After an absence of forty-one years, and after being mourned as dead for more than a quarter of a century, John Turpie, brother of Senator David Turpie, has returned to this city. Of the large family living south of this city when he left, the father, mother and two sisters are now dead, one brother lives in Kansas City and other in Washington. Robert Turpie, an eccentric bachelor, now occupies the old homestead, and is the sole surviving one of the family in this county. The story of John Turpie's life, if correctly told, would read like a romance. In 1853 he left this place in company with his chum, Bob Dickey. Dickey took down with the measles, at Haunibal, Mo., and, after nursing him for two weeks, and seeing him on the way to recovery, Turpie left him, to join a caravan across the plains to Salem, A. T. He drove an ox team that entire distance, and for the subsequent forty years never saw a face from his old home, neither received any information from any one living here. He spent three years with the Indians, in hunting and trapping, in the mines and pineries, and as a sailor on the Pacific ocean. In appearance John Turple is most an exact duplicate of brother David. He now makes his home in Astoria, Ore. He says his brother visited that place four or five years ago with a number of other Senators, but as he was busy at the time he did not take the trouble

Nail Works. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENCASTLE, Ind., Sept. 28,-No little surprise and much sympathy were occasioned in this city this morning when it was announced that Frank P. Nelson had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Mr. Nelson had long been rated as one of the wealthiest men in Putnam county, his possessions in land, bank and rolling mill stock and property in this city aggregating nearly a quarter of a million of dollars. He was a heavy stockholder in the Muncie nail works, and it is supposed that his advances to the company, amounting to over $50,000, compled with the general depression in business, led to his embarrassment. His liabilities cannot now be learned, but his assets at anything like a fair valuation are amply sufficient to cover them. Quinton Broadstreet and James H. C. Nelson, a brother of the assignor, are named as assignees. Kokomo Firm Fails for $40,000. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

Young Chicago Desperado Shot to Death by Police Officers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23 .- James McGrath, a young desperado who has been arrested ten times for every year of his life and has deen charged with almost every offense in the criminal calendar, was killed to-night while resisting arrest for fatally shooting Thomas Beebam, one of his companions, McGrath and Beeham were drinking beer in a barn in the rear of No. 32 Henry street, and a quarrel arose. It ended when Mc-Grath shot Beeham through the head. Word was sent to all police stations that McGrath was wanted, and officers from all parts of the city were soon in pursuit. For some hours no trace of him could be found, but word was finally received that he had been seen at Thirtieth and Halsted streets trying to sell a revolver for 70 cents. This clew was also lost. and it was not until late in the afternoon that officers Michael Fleming and William Butler met a man at the corner of Fifteenth and Canal streets whom they thought was McGrath. They passed him, bowever, and walked on several yards, when officer Fleming said to officer Butler that he was positive that the man standing at the corner was the man wanted for shooting Beeham. They turned about and advanced towards the man, who was still standing at the corner. Officer Butler approached him

"Will you tell me what your name is?" "You want to know my name, do you!" said the fellow, with a curse; "well, this is it," and as he spoke he drew a revolver and fired point blank at Butler's head. The bullet, however, went wide of its mark and struck Edward Jackson, who was walking on the other side of the street, breaking his nose. McGrath fired a second time, pointing his weapon at Officer Fleming. The officers had drawn their own weapons when McGrath fired the first time, and as he pulled the trigger the second time both fired at him. One ball passed directly through his heart, killing him instantly, the other striking him in the armpit, inflicting a wound that would have proved fatal. McGrath's last bullet went through Fleming's left leg. inflicting a serious wound. McGrath has for years been a terror in the southwest part of the city. His elder brother, John, was even worse than James, and was once sen-tenced to the penitentiary for life for killing an officer. He escaped this sentence on a technicality, and is now doing twenty-five years in Joliet for burglary. Beeham, McGrath's first victim, is dying in the hos-

His Friends Say He Won't Accept Amendments to the Repeal Bill.

No Progress Made by Would-Be "Compromisers" or Advocates of Night Sessions of the Senate.

SCHEME OF PENNSYLVANIANS

Proposed Combination of Protected Interests and Silverites.

Why Cameron Was Not Censured for His Speech-Peffer Talks Against Repeal-Private War Claims.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.-There is good reason for believing that the intention of the repeal Senators of making an attempt on next Monday to force night sessions of the Senate, which was so strongly hinted at yesterday, has been abandoned, or that the day will be postponed until later in week. There is no doubt that an effort was made on both sides of the chamber to secure an agreement looking to night sessions, and that Monday was the day the as the time for inaugurating the movement. It would appear, however, from the developments to-day, that they were not successful in securing the acquiescence in the programme which they had expected. The Senators as a rule hesitate to take this extreme step, out of consideration for their own comfort as well as because of their wish not to appear harsh towards the minority. The fact has also been ascertained that several of the repeal Senators would be absent from the city during the week, and that on this account the repeal advocates will not be so strong next week as ordinarily. Senator Voorhees, when asked about the programme, refused to express bimself at all. He generally talks very freely upon questions concerning which he thinks the publie has a right to information, and his silence in the present instance would indicate that the programme for night sessions has not yet been perfected. There was more talk of compromise about the Senate to-day than has been heard for a week, but it did not take any definite form. A prominent Republican Senator, who has not so far taken any part in the present debate, was engaged during the greater part of the day in trying to get Senators on both sides of the question to agree to a proposition for the purchase and coinage of $3,000,000 of silver per month for the next three years, but met with many obstacles. The especial supporters of the President asserted that he would cer no amendment whatever, and the silver Senators made objection that to place the limit of purchase at a time within Mr. Cleveland's administration would be to simply postpone the blow, and it might almost as well fall now. Senator Faulkner was also engaged in canvassing his proposition, but with no better result than in the case of the Republican Senator. Nothing was accomplished in any direction, but the events of yesterday and to-day have caused many more

Silverites of the West.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The speech of Senator Cameron in favor of the free coinage of silver continues to attract attention here, not only because it is a startling and unusual attitude for a Republican Senator from an Eastern State like Pennsylvania to take, but because of the events that are crowding the heels of the speech in Pennsylvania. At the meeting of the Republican League at keading, yesterday, an attempt to censure Senator Cameron for his course was defeated by a two-thirds majority. An explanation of this failure to censure Senator Cameron, and, indeed, of the attitude he has taken, is furnished by the intelligence that has reached here that a movement is on foot among the protected manufacturers of Pennsylvania to effect a combination between the protected interests and the free silver men. which shall have for its aim the defeat of the legislation looking to tariff reduction and the gratification of the West's demand for free coinage under modified conditions. Some of the members of the Manufacturers' Club, of Philadelphia, led by James Dobson, the big woolen manufacturer, and Wharton Barker, the banker, are engaged in circulating a petition to the Senate, looking to a consolidation of the interests of the protectionists and the free silverites. Many signatures are being procured. The scheme is to defeat the new tariff bill and give to silver, first, free comage of silver upon payment by the owner of a seignorage absorbing threefourths of the difference in the market price (London) of bullion and its coined value; second, the prohibition of foreign silver for coinage purpose, except at a seignorage that will absorb all the difference between the market price and the mint value, and, third, an international monetary conference. cluding all the nations of world, except gold monometallic countries, for the purpose of arriving at an international agreement. The claim is set up that the interests of silver and protection are identical. The plan mapped out by the Pennsylvania manufacturers, it will be observed, follows closely the idea of Senator Cameron's speech, except that the former provides against an influx of foreign silver to the mints by absorbing all the difference between the market and the coined value of silver, while the latter places upon foreign silver an inhibitory duty. The scheme is to align the interests of silver and protection, and by this means prevent adverse tariff legislation and secure more liberal silver legislation. It is an alliance, the suggestion of which is fraught with great possibilities, if it were practicable, but its successful operation would mean the breaking down of party lines, perhaps, and an entire readjustment of party politics. The proposition, while it seems chimerical, will doubtless attract a great deal of attention throughout the country. Soth Mr. Dobson and Mr. Barker were here to night conferring with the silver in the Upper House. WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The day in the Senate was as calm as the proverbial mill pond, and there were several amusing incidents in striking contrast with the sharp thrusts and the bitter retorts of yesterday. While Mr. Peffer was speaking Mr. Hoar asked a question in a tone mandible on the other side of the chamber, and Mr. Harris sarcastically observed that if the interview between the Senator from Kansas and the Senator from Massachusetts were not entirely confidential, the Senators on the other side would be glad to hear it. Mr. Hoar did not relish the laughter which followed at his expense, and, turning to the chair, asked if Mr. Harris bad been in order in speaking without rising from his seat, the rules providing that a Senator in speaking shall rise from his seat. Later, Mr. Dolph asked Mr. Peffer a question, and an intimation from Mr. Stewart that he would like to answer the Senator from Oregon, raised the risibilities of Senators. "The Senator from Nevada i Mr. Senators. "The Senator from Nevada | Mr. Stewart | has not been a Populist long enough to be an authority." replied Mr. Petter, and Mr. Stewart joined in the laughter which ensued. Notice was given to-day that Senator Morgan, of Alabama, would address the Senate to-morrow on the repeal bill.

The resolution offered yesterday by Mr.
Teller, calling for information as to the anticipation of interest on government bonds since 1880, was taken up the first thing to-day. If there was objection to it, Mr. Teller said, he would not debate it.
Mr. Voorhees said a literal compliance with the resolution would involve great labor. He asked Mr. Teller to define the scope of that part of the resolution asking under what circumstances interest had been anticipated?" which was the objectionable part of the resolution.

Mr. Teller replied that, as the new administration had been installed largely because its party had found fault with the financial policy of the administration and of the Republican party, he assumed that it meant a radical revision and reconstruction of the financial policy of the administration and reconstruction of the financial policy of the country. tion of the financial policy of the country. After further debate the resolution was

The repeal bill was taken up at 1 P. M. Mr. Hoar sent up to the desk and had read an editorial from the Peoria (Iil.) Journal in relation to the controversy relative to the part taken by Mr. Ernest Seyd, of England, in the legislation of 1873. The Journal printed what purported to be a quotation from Mr. Hooper's speech in the House of Representatives to contradict the letter of Mr. Seyd's son. In this quo Senators having the matter in hand named | tion the words referred to Mr. Seyd, "who is now here," were attributed to Mr. Hooper. Mr. Hoar had that part of Mr. Hooper's speech read from the Congressional Record, in which words, "who is now here" did not appear. These words, said Mr. Hoar, are a deliberate, vile, audacious, unscrapulous and infamous forgery. Mr. Cullom knew the editor of the Peoria Journal, Mr. Barnes, and while he was astonished at the misquotation, he was sure Mr. Barnes was not personally responsible for the forgery in the sense of having committed it or being cognizant of it. Mr. Teller also knew Mr. Barnes, and felt sure he would be guilty of no improper conduct in connection with the statement. The debate continued for more than an hour, and then Mr. Peffer addressed the Senate. He sent to the desk and had read the letter of the President to Governor Northen, of Georgia. The letter did not dissipate, said Mr. Peffer, the confusion in the public mind as to the President's real opinions on the monetary question. He might be a monometallist; he might be a bimetallist; but there was nothing in the President's letter to show what kind of a metallist he was! There was but one thing the President insisted upon, and that was the repeal of the Sherman law. While pretending to be a bimetallist, as a number of Senators pretended to be; while pretending that he favored the use of gold and silver the President made it plain, if anything in the letter was plain, that he would measure by a gold standard, whereas the history of the country had been just the reverse. Gold had been measured by the silver standard and Mr. Peffer insisted that the system had not been changed so far as concerned the law. Mr. Peffer said his amendment, which is the pending one, would give the country bimetallism. "Whenever the administration, represented by its friends upon this floor," declared Mr. Peffer, "are ready to accept the pending amendment or some other amendment which will bring about the restoration of the law of 1837 they can pass the repeal bill in twenty-five minutes." Mr. Peffer's speech covered a wide range of subjects. The opening of the Cherokee Strip, the methods of leaning money on Western farm lands, the employment of armed forces in difficulties between employers and employes, and the loaning of money at usurious rates were all discussed incidentally to the original question. When he was denouncing the loaning of money at what he called usurious rates Mr. Hawley inquired if the Senator from Kansas had any money he wanted to loan without interest. Mr. Peffer, unfortunately, wasn't in a condition to do that, but when he had, in the past, loaned money he thanked God he had not exacted interest for its use, and he never would. Mr. Peffer, at 5:10, reached what he denominated the subject of "parties." Then he paused and said that, while he was willing to continne with his speech this evening and to address the Senate till sunrise to-morrow morning, he did not desire to exhaust the patience of the Seuate by asking Senators to remain longer than they wished to. Mr. Harris thereupon moved an executive session, after which the Senate adjourned.

RAID ON THE TREASURY.

Many Private War Claims to Be Reported from House Committees. WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 .- "Private war claims are to be the order of the day," says a morning newspaper. "A day does not pass that dozens of bills are not introduced and referred to the committee to which they belong. These war claims possess an important interest for western Maryland, northern Virginia, West Virginia and southern Pennsylvania. In addition to many private claims, Mr. McKaig has introduced bills providing for the payment of $200,000 to the city of Frederick, $3,000 to Hagerstown, and $1,500 to Middletown, All these claims grew out of the raids of Gen. Jubal Early, who levied the above sums upon the several towns after their invasion. Tuesday, however, Mr. Beltzhoover, of Pennsylvania, succeeded in having reported favorably by the war claims committee, of which he is chairman, his bill for the payment of $3,847,945.94 to residents of southern Pennsylvania for damages sustained because of the invasion of confederates and the presence of Union forces during the late war. "These Pennsylvania war claims grew out of three expeditons into the State-in 1862 by General Stewart, in 1863 by General Lee and in 1864 by Gen. Jubal Early. On the 29th of July, 1864, the confederate brigades of Johnson and McCausland, consisting of from 2,500 to 3,000 men, with six guns, crossed the Potomac and advanced upon Chambersburg, the county seat of Franklin county. The town was invested by the entire command of Johnson and McCausland and a demand made on the people for $100,000 in gold or $500,000 in government funds as a ransom, a number of citizens being arrested and held as hostages for its payment. No offer of money was made by the people, and the town was burned by the confederate forces on July 30, 1864. The most expensive raid to Pennsylvanians was the raid of 1864 by General Early. Stewart's raid in 1862 amounted to $123,-

Republicans Object to Certain Nominations

-A Day to lie Devoted in Consideration. WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 .- The President has withdrawn the nomination of Leopold Moore, of New York city, to be consul at St. Christopher, West Indies.

It developed to-day that in the executive sessions of the Senate that have been held recently the Democrats have been unable to muster a quorum, and, as a consequence, only those appointments to which there were no objections could be confirmed. There are now before that body a number of appointments which are in opposition to the home rule plank of the Democratic platform and against them some of the Republican members have been making a fight with such effect that none of them have been confirmed for some

It was suggested that an early period in the day should be devoted to the consideration of those appointments when a quorum of the Senate was present, but as this

FAST TIME IN THE 2:20 PACE

May Marshall and Will Kerr Beaten by Speedy Hal Braden.

Free-for-All Won by Manager-Match Running Race Won from Lamplighter by Tammany.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 28 .- Ten thousand people had no occasion to display their pent-up enthusiasm when the queen of turf trotters tried to lower the world's record, but as many lovers of the light harness saw a new world's record nailed to the mast here in the most remarkable pacing race ever witnessed. Of course the crowd was largely drawn by the effort of Nancy Hanks to lower her own record. The track was perfect, but the other conditions were lacking. First, it was known that Mr. Doble was a very sick man-so sick, in fact, that only by administering powerful medicines hypodermically could he be made strong enough to sit in the sulky. Then, when the little mare came out for a warming up heat, with Charley Doble behind her, it was noticed that she seemed a trifle tucked up or lame, and the last cutting a figure was the cool northwest wind, not at all to the liking of the tenderly cared for

It was but 4 o'clock when Nancy Hanks, with Mr. Doble holding the ribbons, came down past the grand stand and received a salvo of applause. The noted driver wore a haggard look, and going around for an easy mile, was seen to stop at the half as if too ili to drive the little mare home. But he had set his heart on the effort, and in spite of the warning of his physician, he scored down for the work, with the runner. Artist, on the wheel to urge the mare along. The first quarter was done in 31 seconds, and when the half was gone in 1:03 a sigh went up from the big crowd. The third quarter was done in the same time as the first, but the mare, not guided by a strong arm, was seen to falter in the stretch, and the last quarter was finished in the slow time of 324 seconds. The 2:20 pace was the sensation of the year. The six fastest heats ever gone in harness was recorded, the race record for a mare so long held by Vinette and more recently divided by Prima Donna, was knocked to smithereens by May Marshall in the fourth heat and the event was finally captured by the favorite, Hal Braden. That is the fourth of Brown Hal's get to secure a mark of 2:09 or better. George Castle's horse, with Splann up, captured the first heat after a hot fight with Turco. There was the hottest racing ever seen in the second heat, Will Kerr taking the lead from the start and keeping it until he drove home. He outfinished Braden, the last half being in 1:02. The talent was all at sea, but felt easier when Braden captured the third heat, driving Kerr to a break. There was a surprise party in the fourth. Marshall scored down with terrific speed, and, taking the pole at the turn, was never headed. She and Braden fought it out in the next, and the little mare looked like a sure winner and could have made a record to be shot for many a day, but her driver, thinking he had the brown Hal horse beaten, eased the mare up and she tripped just at the flag. Geers, who had grown disheartened, reefed his horse and landed the heat. That virtually ended the race, there being but three contending horses in the last heat, which was a procession all the way 'round. Fully $10,000 was in the pools on this race. Harrietta was a hot favorite in the 2:19 trot, and she did not disappoint her heavy backers. Her only competitor was Zembia, and by an accident in colliding with Florida, the explanation of which to the judges would have saved her a place, she was distanced. The free-for-all pace was a farce, as might have been expected when Roy Wilkes, with not a sound foot, was permitted to start. It was a walkover for Manager. Summaries:
